

ABSTRACT

In a radio network controller for controlling a radio base station device for making a communication with a movable terminal through a radio link, first control means for controlling a transfer of a control signal or signalling is provided separately from second control means for controlling a transfer of user data related to the terminal. A control dependent on a particular radio transmission scheme is conducted in the second control means.